In the meantime the matter was taken up with the Mexican consul in El Paso and he went over to Juarez. From 3 ociock until 6 oclock they hunted high and low for Gen. Castro and finally got in touch with him at the military headquarters on Lerdo avenue. He referred them to Luis Martinez, judge of letters, declaring that the matter was a civil one. The latter informed them that the man could be taken out if they would arrange a bond of $2000 Mex. either in cash deposited in the Banco Nacional or else a bond signed by some one owning land in Mexico. This could not be arranged Saturday, as it was then arranged Saturday, as it was then nearly 7 oclock. In the meantime, charges were filed with the judge of letters in which Gen. Francisco Castro and Col Enrique Por-tillo charged Dixon with attempted kidnaping, an offence punishable by a term of imprisonment of two years.

upon the military authorities. He disputed their right to have made the arrest of Dixon, contending that it was a civil affair in the first place. He dea civil affair in the first place. He de-manded, he did not request nor sug-gest, but he demanded in the name of the United States government, that the soldiers who had made the arrest and had done the shooting, should be ar-rested immediately and placed in Jall and held there, and then punished for the shooting. He gave them to under-stand that he considered, and the United States government considered stand that he considered, and the United States government considered the whole affair a conspiracy and the government which he represented would hold the military authorities personally responsible for it. He was assured by Gen. Castro that the men had been arrested, would be tried and if found guilty would be punished both by the civil and military authorities, and if Dixon were found guilty, he would be punished and the soldiers released.

Gatley Tells of Conspiracy.

C. G. Gatley, the inspector whom the negroes sought, tells the following story of the affair:

"At 11:10 Saturday morning a man called up the immigration office and asked for Mr. Gatley. I told him that I was Gatley. Then he said: You want Arthur Walker on the other side, don't you?" I replied that we did, and he said: Well, he has had a quarrel with his woman over there in El Pase and he is going over to fix it up. He will go over tonight. If you will come to the Silver King or Jockey Club saloon in Juares this merning I will telt you which way he will go and when so you can catch him. Then I asked him his name and he said 'Allie Hellington,' or something like that. He hesitated in giving a name and I asked him how I should know him and he said: "Well, I know you."

"I had an appointment with district attorney Robert T. Neill and could not go over. I spoke to Dixon about the matter and he said he would go. Therefore I went to keep my appointment with Mr. Neill, and on the way back, called at the room of the woman with whom Walker was familiar, in order to ascertain if she and he had a quarrel and if he was coming over and she informed me that it was not so.

"It is a fact that we wanted Arthur Walker on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle a Mexican woman into the United States for immoral purposes in violation of the white slave act."

To Ecca Away From Juares.
F. W. Berkshire, in charge of the El Paso district of the immigration department, has issued orders to all the men under his charge, not to go to Juarez on official business. This order followed that he will be to be to the followed that he will be to the foll der followed the shooting of Dixon, and was given for the purpose of avoiding any such occurrences in the future.

Mexican Consul Explains.

randa states that the American negroes, whom Dixor was interrogating in regard to a white slave case, conspired to make way with the inspector, taking the half breed Mexican into the plot to do the shooting. The consul says there were no regular federal soldiers implicated.

Investigations made by the federal authorities, Miranda asserts, showed that no order had been issued for Dixon's arrest by either military or civil authorities. He declares that the seizure was made by the Salamar soldier at the instigution of the negroes, and that Saenz did the shooting, firing four times at Dixon before bringing him down.

The American negroes, who are under arrest and will be tried by the federals, are Arthur Walker, said to be the organizer of the plot to assassinate Dixon and Henry Bell. No Bend Requested.

The release of Dixon from the Juarez hospital was secured without bond. Saturday night the authorities insisted on a cash bond of 2000 pesos, but this was waived at noon today, through the efforts of consul Miranda and exsecretary of state Porras.

Dr. Tappan, of the government service, who treated Dixon in Juarez, says the officials of the Juarez hospital accorded the prisoner the best possible treatment, and that the director of the hospital gave up his own room for the accommodation of Dixon. The room was clean, Dr. Tappan says, and the hospital authorities furnished clean sheets and linen and plenty of nourishment for the wounded man.

sheets and linen and plenty of nourishment for the wounded man.

Dr. Tappan declared Monday morning that he considered Dixon out of danger and that unless something unforseen should develop, he will be entirely well soon. Dixon had no fever Monday morning and only one degree Sunday night his pulse was normal and he was in the best of spirits, although the pain from the wound in his body was hurting him very much. He slept well Sunday night and received callers Monday morning at his room in the Providence hospital.

Dixon Appears Happy.

Dixon was happy over his narrow escape from death in Juarez and laughed and joked Monday about his narrow escape. He was drinking buttermilk between laughs and said that he was suffering no III effect from his wound except that it was so "darred sere in his side" and he requested his associates at the immigration station not to make him laugh. Dixon is known as the best natured man on the Mexican border and his trip through the 'valley of the shadow of death' Saturday afternoon when he was given the "ley fuga" by the Mexican soldiers did not dampen his contagious good humor.

From Dixon's story of the affair, he was shot at four times when he attempted to get away from the squad and all four of the bullets were fired from a high power rifle, presumably in the hands of Lieut Saenz, believed to be a half breed Mexican-negro. It was the third shot that hit him and he saw mer, 50c.—Advertisement

MEXICO TOLD TO

At the white house, it was said the United States would pursue a course of diligent inquiry into the affair and would insist on summary action against me in the charge at Juarez of knocking an officer down while under arrest. I did not do that. The men were walking two in front and two behind me. A man who I believe to be Lieut. Saenz was behind and was the only one who had a rifle. The other three had six-shooters. I walked forward until I was right behind the front pair and when I came to the corner of the alley I ducked down the alley signaging and running would insist on summary action against the gulity.

Strong representations the most drastic in phraseology that have been made since the present American administration came into power, were made to the Buerta government Sunday when the United States demanded not only the present states demanded not when the United States demanded not only the prompt arrest, courtmartial and punishment of the Mexican federal soldiers who shot Dixon, but the immediate release of Chas. Blesel and Bernard McDonald, American mining men imprisoned at Chibushua city, said to be threatened with execution.

Ambassador Wilson was so exercised over the situation that he distated two telegrams, one to Mexico City and the other to consul Edwards at Juarez. The president with ambassador Wilson's long report in hand Sunday, studied it carefully.

Release of Bissel Demanded.

The ambassador's long experience right behind the front pair and when I came to the corner of the alley I ducked down the alley, sigraging and running close to the wall. I had a lead of 60 feet and I made the most of it.

Four Shots Fired.

"The first shot, which was fired when I was about 60 feet in the lead, came from a high power rifle; I am sure of that, and the three succeeding shots all sounded the same as the first shot. I think that Lieut. Saenz had to run up from the rear to where the two front guards were before he could shoot and that gave me the lead. The soldiers never did catch me, and if I had not run into the arms of a policeman I would have got away entirely. I was running in the direction of the police station, for I knew that I could get protection there if I could get away, for I did not think the town efficials would allow the soldiers to shoot me, although they might put me in fall. The second shot hit a Chinaberry tree near where I was and the third and fourth shots were fired in rapid succession. It was the third one which passed through my body. I saw the bullet after it had gone through me and struck the adobe wall in front of me, making a neat little ridge in the dry dirt. The fourth shot hit my shoe, but did not strike my foot.

Reie.se of Bissel Demanded.

The ambassador's long experience with outbursts against American citizens such as those against which the American government lodged a protest Sunday, will make him an important factor in whatever policy is adopted toward the Huerta government on account of the developments at Juarez and Chihuahua. Although McDonald, who is Bissel's fellow prisoner at Santa Rosalis, is re-Although McDonald, who is Bissel's fellow prisoner at Santa Rosalla, is reported to be an English subject, the demands for protection covered both men and the American consul at Chihuahua was ordered to go to the extreme of precaution to prevent harm from befailing them. wall in front of me, making a neat little ridge in the dry dirt. The fourth shot hit my shoe, but did not strike my foot.

The shot gave me the blind staggers for a step or two, but I kept on running and soon outdistanced the soldiers, who were pursuing me. When I went blind and then felt the blood on my clothes, I thought I was killed, for it weakened me and took my breath away. That was the reason the policeman caught me. The street was deserted when I fell and I was satisfied in my own mind that the soldiers were going to kill me, although they did not say so. I knew nothing of Portillo's harracks and thought they were taking me to the hills. Portillo drove up in his carringe and I was placed in it, as I was geiting weak from loss of blood.

Cras Treated Him Well.

"Mayor Crus, at the police station, was the only one who treated me like a human being; the others only grinned as if they has winged a stray dog. Crus shook hands with me and told the soldiers and Portillo that he washed his hands of the whole affair, as they had done it and he had no order for my arrest. He added that there would be trouble and the soldiers would have to stand for it. Mayor Crus treated me with every consideration and the hospital attendants also cared for me well, and it is a mistake that the hospital was dirty.

"After I had been taken to the police station they presented the order for my arrest with my name written in where it had been left blank. They had to ask me my name, but the warrant was made out in Syanish to read for the arrest of Blank, an immigration inspector. This makes me believe that they were after Galey and that I was shot when he did not go. I was within half a block of the police station when they caught me after I had been shot, and if I had not been out of wind I would have arrived there and given myself up."

The Standard Oll company's boat was commandeered near Stow Chow and much of the money on board was taken. Afterwards the boat was released.

Lic. Guillermo Porras, speaking for Gen. Francisco Castro, told the following as their side of the Dixon affair: "We did not know that Mr. Dixon was coming over or he would have been given full protection in his official capacity. Two negroes pointed him out to the soldiers and said he had come to kidnap another negro, Arthur Walker. They arrested him and told him they would take him to the commandancia. They meant the commandancia del cuartel and not the commandancia del cuartel and not the commandancia de policia, as he supposed. He broke away from them, ran, and was shot. It was a misunderstanding. The matter was referred to the civil judge, and he is investigating it. Juan Saenz, one of Portillo's soldiers, is held, charged with shooting Dixon. There was no desire and is no desire on the part of any official to injure any American. The two negroes who caused Dixon's arrest, swore in court that he offered them money to take the other negro (Walker) to the American side. I do not believe that statement. He would have had no reason for making such an offer." U. S. ADMIRAL REFUSES TO SEND MARINES TO KU LING

As Ku Ling is on elevated ground, it Inspector C. G. Gatley has obtained evidence from a Mexican woman residing in Juarez, who saw the shooting. She said that the soldiers dragged Dixon about by the collar after they had shot him and he was under arrest. He was taken to Portillo's cuartel and there Portillo gave him a box to sit on, but soldiers kicked it out from under him as soon as Portillo's back was turned. He was walked from the cuartel to the mayor's office and back to the cuartel again with blood streaming down his leg, before he was taken in a back to the hospital.
